Course description:

In an increasingly globalized world encounters with cultural others are everyday occurrences. In order to facilitate cross-cultural communication, it is of necessity to learn to understand and respect different ways of being human. This course introduces students to various geographical, cultural, and racial/ethnic Others with a view to opening up new perspectives on the stereotypically known. To open a new perspective on things and people through reading literature is to make what Slavoj Žižek calls “a parallax shift” which in his definition is “not so much a shift in the object as a shift in our attitude toward the viewed object.” Students will be exploring how different cultures map the phenomenal world differently and how the universal is articulated in culture-specific ways. As well, they will be exploring why and how one major social function of literature is to create a shift in our attitude toward cultural Others.

The course format will be a mixture of lectures, class conversations, group discussions and presentations, and D2L online discussion. Everyone will be expected to actively participate in D2L online discussion. You will write a research paper of 2500 words or 10 typed pages. You will need to do library and/or online research before you start writing the paper. Your essay must have a clear, arguable thesis, and should be coherently structured and rigorously argued. To ensure that you will be on the right track, you should submit an essay proposal two weeks prior to the due date.

Texts and Readings:

Tayeb Salih, Season of Migration to the North
Ngugi wa Thiong'o, The River Between
J. M. Coetzee, Foe
Ama Ata Aidoo, Changes: A Love Story
Guo Xiaolu, A Concise Chinese English Dictionary for Lovers

Assignments and Evaluation:

Critical essay	40%
Online discussions	30%
Class participation	10%
Take-home examination	20%

Students must submit all assignments to qualify for a passing grade. Except in cases of illness supported by a doctor's signed note, I do not grant extensions. Assignments submitted after the deadline will be penalized with the loss of a third of a grade (an A- to B+) per day. No assignments will be accepted one week past the assignment deadline without the prior consent of the instructor.

Please make every effort to take assignments directly to the instructor. If it is not possible to do so, take your assignment to SS 1152 and put it in the dropbox. Your assignment will be date-stamped and placed in the instructor's mailbox. It is your responsibility to keep a copy of all assignments in case of loss by any cause. Assignments cannot be returned by staff in the Department office.

All take-home written assignments must be typewritten and double-spaced. You should use a 12 point type-size and a readable font. To avoid plagiarism, please read the attached statement on plagiarism.

Grading System:

Letter Grade	Percentage	Grade Point Value
A+	90+%	4.0
A	85-89%	4.0
A-	80-84%	3.7
B+	77-79%	3.3
B	74-76%	3.0
B-	70-73%	2.7
C+	67-69%	2.3
C	64-66%	2.0
C-	60-63%	1.7
D+	55-59%	1.3
D	50-54%	1.0
F	0-49%	0

Please note that, according to the University Calendar (F.1), instructors may use their discretion when rounding upwards or downwards when the average of term work and exams is between two letter grades.

Although the A+ is solely an honorific that entails no additional points in the 4-point system, the course instructor will employ this mark to distinguish superlative work that exceeds expectations in style, correctness, intellectual depth and breadth, sophistication, and originality.

Using any source whatsoever without clearly documenting it is a serious academic offense. PLAGIARISM

Plagiarism is an extremely serious offence. Please read the following information carefully. The penalty routinely recommended by the English Department for documented plagiarism is failure of the course in which the offence occurred; academic probation is also routinely applied at the Faculty level. Suspension or expulsion can result from severe or repeated plagiarism.

The University Calendar states:

1. Plagiarism - Essentially plagiarism involves submitting or presenting work in a course as if it were the student's own work done expressly for that particular course when, in fact, it is not. Most commonly plagiarism exists when:

- (a) the work submitted or presented was done, in whole or in part, by an individual other than the one submitting or presenting the work (this includes having another impersonate the student or otherwise substituting the work of another for one's own in an examination or test),
- (b) parts of the work are taken from another source without reference to the original author,
- (c) the whole work (e.g., an essay) is copied from another source, and/or,
- (d) a student submits or presents work in one course which has also been submitted in another course (although it may be completely original with that student) without the knowledge of or prior agreement of the instructor involved.

While it is recognized that scholarly work often involves reference to the ideas, data and conclusions of other scholars, intellectual honesty requires that such references be explicitly and clearly noted.

Plagiarism occurs when direct quotations are taken from a source without specific acknowledgement, or when original ideas or data from the source are not acknowledged. Citing your sources in a bibliography is not enough, because a bibliography does not establish which parts of a student's work are taken from other sources. MLA (Modern Language Association) documentation or other recognized forms of citation must be used for this purpose. Advice on adequate documentation can be found at the following web sites:
