Course description: This course offers a survey of American literature from the post-bellum (post-Civil War) period through the mid-twentieth century, from realism and naturalism through modernism and slightly beyond. We will read both canonical and lesser-known works, attending to the historical contexts in which they were written and the critical contexts in which they have been received. We will pay particular attention to how certain historical developments involving industrialization and changing understandings of gender and race are represented in the literature of this period. This class will also develop our skills as academic writers. We'll model the writing we do in this course—from the blog posts and in-class writing to the essay and its draft—on what professional literary critics do: writing informally as a way to prepare for writing essays and using our essay to break into a critical conversation.

Prerequisites: 12 units of courses labelled English at 300 level or above.

Texts and readings:

- The Norton Anthology of American Literature. Volume C. 9th Edition, ed. Robert S. Levine*
- Mark Twain, A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court, ed. Bernard L. Stein (U of California Press)*
- Nella Larsen, Quicksand and Passing, ed. Deborah McDowell (Scholarly Book Services)* [this edition contains two novellas, but we'll just be reading Passing]
- La Sueur, The Girl, ~ introd. Linda Ray Pratt (West End Press)*
- Critical essays and other primary texts will be posted on D2L.

*Note: it's important you get hard copies of these particular editions. We will refer to particular passages in class, and you need to be able to "flip to p. 332 in the Norton," etc. Please always bring the appropriate book to class and either print out the D2L materials or bring your laptop so you can access them in class.

Assignments and Evaluation:

Final Essay with draft, as well as workshop and cover letters.....	30%
Registrar-scheduled Final Exam (closed book)	30%
Blog Posts	15%
Class Participation including participation in class discussions (10%) and completion of in-class writing (5%), and reading quizzes (10%).....	25%

Essay:

There will be one essay assigned this term, which will be written in stages, the way that professional literary scholars write. In it, you will analyze one of the primary texts in order to settle a disagreement about it generated in class or on the blog. We’ll also spend time in class discussing what makes a good English essay and holding peer workshops.

You will have the option of writing a prospectus for the final essay in order to get feedback from me and extra credit points on the final.

The Course Blog & Blog Posts

The course blog (<http://english463fall.ucalgaryblogs.ca>) will provide a forum, apart from class discussion, to explore the literature and criticism we read, and find and test out ideas for your essays. I’ll ask you to post and comment at least four times over the course of the term according to a set of deadlines whose details you can find on the course blog. Your blog posts must address at least four different texts of the course. Your posts will not be individually graded, but if you write four that meet the standards for a good post (more details about this can be found on the blog), then you’ll receive a “B” for this portion of the grade; if you write six or more good posts, you’ll receive an “A” for this part of the grade. If one of your blog posts does not meet the the standards for a good post, I’ll give you the chance to revise; if you choose not to, you will not receive credit for that post. You’re welcome to put up a blog post after the deadline, but it won’t count toward your total.

Quizzes and in-class writing

There will be reading quizzes and in-class writing activities throughout the course.

Class Activities, Class Participation and Workshops

We’ll be meeting in the new Taylor Institute, which will enable us to easily discuss texts in large groups and small and do different kinds of activities in class. Although I will contextualize the text we read critically and historically, this is largely a discussion course. The success of the course depends on each person sharing his or her ideas and building on each other’s, including Dr. Halpern’s.

We will be holding a workshop during class for the draft of your first essay. To prepare, you will give your workshop group a draft of your essay, write letters to the other members of your group commenting on their drafts, and write cover letters for your draft and revision, where you reflect on what you’ve done. Failure to participate in the workshop or to write workshop letters or a cover letter will result in a lowering of your class participation grade.

Final Exam:

There will be a registrar-scheduled, closed book final exam, made up of passage i.d.’s, some multiple choice and short-answer questions, and an essay portion. Students must be available for the final exam up to the last day of the examination period, which runs from Dec. 12-22.

Late Assignments:

You have the option of turning in one assignment up to two days late without penalty. Possible late assignments include, a quiz you missed, a blog you didn't get in on time, or an in-class writing exercise you missed. (The final essay draft and revision may not be turned in late.) If you turn in an assignment more than two days late or if you turn in a second assignment late, your grade on the work will be lowered by a third of a grade for each late day (i.e., an A paper that is one day late will receive an A-, two days late a B+, and so on; weekend days are counted in this total). If you turn in the draft of your first essay late, that will affect the grade on the revision. You need to let me know at least one day in advance if you would like to take the extension. No assignments will be accepted one week past the assignment deadline without the prior consent of the instructor.

Turning in Assignments:

Please make every effort to bring your essay draft and revision directly to Dr. Halpern; I'll also ask you to put a copy in the D2L dropbox. If it is not possible to bring a copy directly to Dr. Halpern, take your assignment to SS 1152 and put it in the dropbox. Your assignment will be date-stamped and placed in the instructor's mailbox. It is your responsibility to keep a copy of all assignments in case of loss by any cause. Assignments cannot be returned by staff in the Department office.

Electronic devices: Top Hat and the D2L quiz function, which we will use this term, requires the use of an electronic device, and you are free to take notes on one as well, but please do not use your device for Facebook, texting, or any other activity that pulls you out of class mentally if not physically. There are no electronic devices permitted during the final exam.

Grading system:

- You must complete both the draft and revision of the final essay to qualify for a passing grade.
- In computing your grades, I convert any letter grades to percentages and then, to compute your final grade, I change the final percentage to its equivalent letter grade.
- Sometimes I'll assign a split grade (e.g., B-/C+). To find the numerical equivalent, I average the two grades (e.g., a B-/C+=70%)
- Please note that, according to the University Calendar (F.1), instructors may use their discretion when rounding upwards or downwards when the average of term work and exams is between two letter grades.
- Although the A+ is solely an honorific that entails no additional points in the four-point system, I will employ this mark to distinguish superlative work that exceeds expectations in insightfulness, sophistication, and originality.

The university uses the following conversion:

90 + %	A+	4.0
85 – 89 %	A	4.0
80 – 84 %	A–	3.7
77 – 79 %	B+	3.3
74 – 76 %	B	3.0
70 – 73 %	B–	2.7
67 – 69 %	C+	2.3

64 – 66 %	C	2.0
60 – 63 %	C–	1.7
55 – 59 %	D+	1.3
50 – 54 %	D	1.0
0 – 49 %	F	0

Plagiarism:

Using any source whatsoever without clearly documenting it is a serious academic offense. Consequences include failure on the assignment, failure in the course and possible suspension or expulsion from the university.
