Course description:

This course provides a rough survey of the development of what came to be called Canadian literature, in English, from the late 18th century to 1950. We will consider this writing through multiple frames: its situation within the wider Empire; the distinctions between “popular” and “literary”; the relationship of the national to the global; and its role in the larger colonial project, among others. We will read letters, travel narratives, poetry, novels, and short fiction, and through archival research attempt to situate this writing within its historical context.

Texts and readings:

Online readings (available on D2L)

James DeMille, A Strange Manuscript Found in a Copper Cylinder

Lucy Maude Montgomery, Anne of Green Gables

E. Pauline Johnson, Legends of Vancouver

Frederick Philip Grove, Settlers of the Marsh

Assignments and Evaluation:

Participation	10%
Archive project	20%
Midterm exam	15%
Research Paper (including abstract)	30%
Final exam	25%
	100%

Students are expected to attend regularly and have the day’s assigned readings completed before class. The participation grade will measure this through occasional, unannounced, elementary quizzes on the day’s assigned reading. There will be five such quizzes; the lowest grade will be dropped and the remaining four averaged to determine your grade for this component of the course. This is to account for unfortunate absences from class, such as those due to illness. Consequently, there will be no rewrites of quizzes.

The archive assignment will involve primary research in the TFDL. There will be multiple options for this assignment, which students will sign up for at the first class. These options will include working with 19th century letters by arctic explorers, late 19th- and early 20th-century books of poetry and contemporary reviews of the poetry, a cinematic version of Anne of Green Gables, an online archive of a little magazine from the 1920s, little magazines from the period of the Second World War, and drafts of poems by Earle Birney. Students will complete these assignments before we study the writers in question, and will be expected to share their findings with the class on D2L and be prepared to talk about their work in class. A four-page paper will also be part of each assignment. Further details on these assignments will be given in class.

You will write an eight-page (2000 word) research paper on one of the longer texts we are studying. This paper will be due on the last day of classes. Several classes before the paper is due, you will submit a 250-word abstract detailing the topic and thesis of your paper. The abstract will be worth 5%, and the paper 25%.

There will be a midterm test and a final exam. The final exam will be cumulative, and will be scheduled by the Registrar.

You do not have to complete all assignments to receive a passing grade in this course. Assignments submitted after the deadline will be penalized (e.g. with the loss of a third of a grade for each day [not class] that the assignment is overdue). Extra-credit assignments will not be offered.

Note: Please make all efforts to take assignments directly to the instructor. If it is not possible to do so, take your assignment to SS1152 and place it in the drop-box. Your assignment will then be date-stamped and placed in your instructor's mailbox. Please keep a copy of your assignment in case of loss by any cause. Assignments cannot be returned by staff in the Department office. E-mailed submissions will not be accepted and will be deleted.

Note regarding technologies:

Please turn off all communication devices during class. Laptop computers are acceptable in class as long as they do not present a distraction to others. I reserve the right to ban computers from the class if anyone's computer presents a distraction. I am happy to answer inquiries via e-mail but please note that proper e-mail etiquette should be followed, and what you consider 'urgent' may not be considered urgent by others. I will not respond to inquiries over e-mail regarding matters I have addressed in class. You are encouraged to meet someone in the class early in term and exchange e-mails so you can help one another if one person misses a class.

Students may not record lectures unless granted permission by the instructor.

Note regarding textbooks:

Much of this class will involve close readings from literary texts. As such, students are required to have the texts to be discussed with them in class, including hard copies of materials posted to D2L. Students who consistently do not have the texts with them in class will receive a grade of '0' for participation, after a written warning from the instructor.

Your responses make a difference - please participate in USRI Surveys."

PLAGIARISM

Plagiarism is an extremely serious offence. Please read the following information carefully. The penalty routinely recommended by the English Department for documented plagiarism is failure of the course in which the offence occurred; academic probation is also routinely applied at the Faculty level. Suspension or expulsion can result from severe or repeated plagiarism.

The University Calendar states:

1. Plagiarism - Essentially plagiarism involves submitting or presenting work in a course as if it were the student's own work done expressly for that particular course when, in fact, it is not. Most commonly plagiarism exists when:

- (a) the work submitted or presented was done, in whole or in part, by an individual other than the one submitting or presenting the work (this includes having another impersonate the student or otherwise substituting the work of another for one's own in an examination or test),
- (b) parts of the work are taken from another source without reference to the original author,
- (c) the whole work (e.g., an essay) is copied from another source, and/or,
- (d) a student submits or presents work in one course which has also been submitted in another course (although it may be completely original with that student) without the knowledge of or prior agreement of the instructor involved.

While it is recognized that scholarly work often involves reference to the ideas, data and conclusions of other scholars, intellectual honesty requires that such references be explicitly and clearly noted.

Plagiarism occurs when direct quotations are taken from a source without specific acknowledgement, or when original ideas or data from the source are not acknowledged. Citing your sources in a bibliography is not enough, because a bibliography does not establish which parts of a student's work are taken from other sources. MLA (Modern Language Association) documentation or other recognized forms of citation must be used for this purpose. Advice on adequate documentation can be found at the following web sites:

DEPARTMENT OF ENGLISH STATEMENT ON PRINCIPLES OF CONDUCT

According to the University Calendar, <http://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/j.html>

“The University of Calgary community has undertaken to be guided by the following statements of purpose and values: to promote free inquiry and debate, to act as a community of scholars, ..., to respect, appreciate, and encourage diversity, [and] to display care and concern for community”. The Department of English, like the university as a whole, is committed to a “positive and productive learning and working environment.” This environment is characterized by appreciation and encouragement of diversity and respect for the dignity of all persons: students, support staff, and faculty. The department will not tolerate unacceptable behaviour, such as threatening gestures, threatening or abusive verbal or written communication (including e-mails), or any conduct that “seriously disrupts the lawful education and related activities of students and/or university staff”. Any cases of such misconduct should be reported immediately to the department Head, who, depending on the nature and severity of the incident, may then take further appropriate action.
