COURSE OUTLINE

ENGLISH 201.13 Approaches to Literature
COURSE TITLE: Women Writers, Writing Woman
M/W/ 8:00-9:15, Room: ST 127

Fall 2017

Instructor: Celiese Lypka
Office: SS 1031
E-mail: celieselypka@ucalgary.ca
Office hours: Mondays 9:30-10:30, or by appointment

Course description: Is there such a thing as “women’s writing” and, if so, what are its characteristics? All of the texts we will read in this course are written by women, with a focus on female archetypes and heroine narratives. This course will explore the ways in which women have contributed to literary tradition both by working within and by challenging mainstream movements. In examining women’s use of literary forms as aesthetic, personal, and political sites, we will consider how issues of identity and historical context affect and influence writing strategies. In this class, students will learn to develop skills in close reading, essay writing, and critical thinking.

Required Texts and Readings: All texts, except for those marked by an asterisk, are available at the University Bookstore. The rest are available online.

Eliza Haywood, Fantomina (1725)*
Jane Austen, Pride and Prejudice (1813)
Charlotte Perkins Gilman, “The Yellow Wallpaper” (1892)*
Virginia Woolf, A Room of One’s Own (1922)
Toni Morrison, Sula (1973)
Tracey Lindberg, Birdie (2016)
Selected short poetry*

Assignments and Evaluation:

In-Class Writing & Quizzes (worth 10% of final grade)

Students are expected to attend class regularly and contribute to group discussion about the texts and concepts of the course. Students will be assessed based on in-class exercises and writing activities, as well as short quizzes testing reading comprehension.

Close-Reading Responses (worth 10% of final grade)

Students will be required to complete two reading responses (250 words each, worth 5%) in the first half of the semester. These assignments will help students practice reading comprehension, textual analysis, and writing skills to prepare for the essay assignment. Students may choose a text they intend to write on in more detail for the essay, but will be expected to develop their ideas far beyond the Reading Response for this purpose.

Students will choose two works from the first half of our course schedule and use ideas and themes discussed in class to write a response to these texts. These will be handed in at the beginning of class on the agreed upon day for each chosen text and must be critical. The instructor will post deadlines for each text, but students are responsible for choosing which dates/texts to engage with.

In-Class Test (worth 15% of final grade)

The in-class test will take place approximately halfway through the course and will include multiple choice and short answer questions about reading and writing techniques and course material up until that time.

Essay Introduction and Outline (worth 15% of final grade)

Following in-class instruction on the basics of writing an essay, students will submit the first part of the essay they intend to write. This one-page section (approx. 250 words) will include an introductory paragraph and thesis statement, plus one quotation from a relevant secondary source they intend to use to support their argument.

Research Essay (worth 30% of final grade) Once students have received feedback on the introduction and outline, they will make necessary revisions and incorporate the changes into a final 1250-word essay (worth 25% of the final grade).

Final Registrar-Scheduled Exam (worth 20% of final grade)

There will be a registrar-scheduled final exam for this course. Students must be available for examinations up to the last day of the examination period (December 2017).

There will be no extra credit assignments for this course.

Students are required to hand assignments in electronically via d2l prior to the beginning of class on the indicated due date. Instruction on how to do this will be provided. Students may also be required to hand in paper copies at the beginning of class on the indicated due date, in addition to their electronic submission.

Assignments submitted after the deadline will be penalized with the loss of a third of a grade (an A- to B+) for each business day [not class] that the assignment is overdue. No assignments will be accepted one week past the assignment deadline without the prior consent of the instructor.

Please make every effort to take assignments directly to the instructor. If it is not possible to do so, take your assignment to SS 1152 and put it in the dropbox. Your assignment will be date-stamped and placed in the instructor's mailbox. It is your responsibility to keep a copy of all assignments in case of loss by any cause. Assignments cannot be returned by staff in the Department office.

PLAGIARISM

Plagiarism is an extremely serious offence. Please read the following information carefully. The penalty routinely recommended by the English Department for documented plagiarism is failure of the course in which the offence occurred; academic probation is also routinely applied at the Faculty level. Suspension or expulsion can result from severe or repeated plagiarism.

The University Calendar states:

1. Plagiarism - Essentially plagiarism involves submitting or presenting work in a course as if it were the student's own work done expressly for that particular course when, in fact, it is not. Most commonly plagiarism exists when:

- (a) the work submitted or presented was done, in whole or in part, by an individual other than the one submitting or presenting the work (this includes having another impersonate the student or otherwise substituting the work of another for one's own in an examination or test),
- (b) parts of the work are taken from another source without reference to the original author,
- (c) the whole work (e.g., an essay) is copied from another source, and/or,
- (d) a student submits or presents work in one course which has also been submitted in another course (although it may be completely original with that student) without the knowledge of or prior agreement of the instructor involved.

While it is recognized that scholarly work often involves reference to the ideas, data and conclusions of other scholars, intellectual honesty requires that such references be explicitly and clearly noted.

Plagiarism occurs when direct quotations are taken from a source without specific acknowledgement, or when original ideas or data from the source are not acknowledged. Citing your sources in a bibliography is not enough, because a bibliography does not establish which parts of a student's work are taken from other sources. MLA (Modern Language Association) documentation or other recognized forms of citation must be used for this purpose. Advice on adequate documentation can be found at the following web sites:
