Course Description: This course emphasizes fundamental skills: how to read a text accurately and critically; how to write logically, clearly, and persuasively. The Monstrous considers the interconnectedness of literature and identity by examining the Other through the medium of monstrous metaphors. Within this course, students will read Frankenstein by Mary Shelley, as well as a selection of related short stories, poems, and novels that highlight the ways in which we tell stories about ourselves and others. Students will also be introduced to the application of critical theory to both the texts covered in class, and the wider literary world. This course emphasizes engaged, considered readings of these works, and focuses on how our conceptions of literature change alongside our cultural contexts.

Prerequisite(s): Not open to students with credit in English 201 or 251.

Texts and Readings:

Available in University Bookstore:
- Frankenstein; or, The Modern Prometheus (Original 1818 Text) by Mary Shelley
- Wrist by Nathan Niigan Noodin Adler
- The Melancholy Death of Oyster Boy by Tim Burton
- Outlaw Bodies edited by Lori Selke and Djibril Al-Ayad
- The Broadview Pocket Guide to Writing: Revised Fourth Canadian Edition by Doug Babington, Don LePan, and Maureen Okun

Available Online, via D2L Course Forum:
- Additional critical sources

Assignments and Evaluation:

Close Reading (25%):
Understanding the detailed forms, figures and themes of a work is as important to understanding that work as considering its larger cultural context. This short essay of 750 words will focus on a close reading of one or more texts by an author covered in the course. Students will engage with their chosen texts by examining their content and forms. Each essay will be accompanied by an MLA formatted bibliography listing the texts consulted.

Discussion Forum (15%):
Actively participating in academic discussion facilitates collaboration and fosters a better sense of the scope of scholarly discourse. For this assignment, students will be both leading their own discussions and contributing to others' analyses. This project has two parts:

1) Leading Discussion: Students will sign up to lead discussions related to the course's texts and themes via our D2L discussion forums. Each student will choose a text associated with one of the course lectures and will create a post of 250 words in the forums. This post will build on the text's themes, ideas, forms, or meanings by presenting a short argument or close reading of the text, and will provide a question designed to provoke further conversation. For the duration of a week -- business days only -- the student will monitor his or her discussion thread, respond to other students when appropriate, and continue to foster dialogue. Leading a discussion will count towards 65% of this assignment grade.

2) Responding to Discussion: Students will be required to respond to a minimum of two discussion posts other than their own over the course of the class. Students are encouraged to respond in thoughtful ways that prioritize detailed discussion and scholarly collaboration. Responding to discussions will count towards 35% of this assignment grade.

As this assignment is directly tied to the progress of the course readings, there will be no opportunity to extend, defer, or miss the deadlines associated with each posting. Students are encouraged to post in advance of their deadlines, and choose their assigned discussion weeks to best fit with their overall schedules.

Group Presentation (15%):
Researching the literary roots of a work can help us to better understand its social and cultural context. For this project, each group will choose one text from the course readings and discuss it in terms of how it relates to Shelley's Frankenstein. Each group will analyse how the chosen text explores one of the course's major themes -- monstrosity, otherness, physicality, creation, etc. -- and how that exploration fits with Frankenstein's examination of the same theme. The group will consider both the content and the form of these texts, and will also be required to integrate one appropriate critical secondary source into their analysis. Students may optionally use visual materials, such as PowerPoint, but they must support and highlight the group's central argument. The presentation must be 8-10 minutes in length (no longer). There will likely be 4-5 students per group. Students in each group will be assigned a common grade. However, to ensure that the presentation grade reflects the equal efforts of all members, the instructor will consult with each group periodically.

Close Reading Research Paper (25%):
Considering our own interpretations in the context of larger academic and critical conversations is an important step in formulating strong arguments. For this essay, students will pursue their chosen lines of inquiry with reference to texts and authors covered in the course and related academic criticism. This essay of 1250 words will incorporate 2-3 secondary scholarly sources which will support and help build the student's own argument. Each essay will be accompanied by an MLA formatted bibliography listing both the primary and secondary texts consulted, as well as a library worksheet demonstrating the student's research process.
Final Exam (20%):
The final exam marks the culmination of all our work in English 251. The course will have a registrar-scheduled examination during the regular exam period. The registrar schedules all examinations; the instructor has no control over when ours will be held.

TOTAL: 100%

Additional Regulations:

- Unless otherwise indicated, all assignments are due at the beginning of class on their corresponding due dates. Please make every effort to hand in assignments as directed, which will primarily be online through our Desire2Learn course website. Your assignments must have both your name and Dr. Lackner's on the first page. All assignments must be typed, double-spaced and submitted online as instructed.

- Late assignments will lose a fraction of a grade per day (not per class) unless an extension has been granted. (Ex: An assignment submitted two days late that would have earned a B will instead receive a C+.) Late assignments can be submitted via D2L, in the same manner as assignments submitted on time. No assignments will be accepted one week past the assignment deadline without the prior consent of the instructor.

- While you are not required to complete all assignments in order to pass the course, you are strongly encouraged to do so; even one missed assignment will significantly impact a student's final grade.

- Students are responsible for keeping copies of all assignments in case of loss of any kind. Only the instructor is able to return assignments to students.

- There will be no extra credit assignments or opportunities to redo and resubmit your work. Do the best work you can on each assignment before you submit it.

- This course includes a Registrar-scheduled exam, which will be open book. Students are required by the University of Calgary to be available for examinations up to and including the last day of the examination period (June 19-23, 2020).

Grading System:

Course grades are based on the University of Calgary four-point Undergraduate Grading System and the standard percentage conversion chart of the Department of English:

Please note that, according to the University Calendar (www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/f-1-1.html), instructors may use their discretion when rounding upwards or downwards when the average of term work and exams is between two letter grades.

Although the A+ is solely an honorific that entails no additional points in the four-point system, the course instructor will employ this mark to distinguish superlative work that exceeds expectations in style, correctness, intellectual depth and breadth, sophistication, and originality. There is no D- grade.

Preparation for Class:
Always bring the text(s) listed on the weekly reading schedule to class with you unless otherwise instructed by the professor. Consult the schedule well before every class and listen carefully to additional instructions given at the end of each lecture so that you know which materials we will be using during the next class.

It is critically important that you have the texts we are scheduled to discuss with you, as close and detailed readings of each work under discussion are the cornerstones of studying literature. Similarly, you are expected to have read and engaged with each text before the corresponding lecture on that work. As with all courses, preparation is the key to understanding. Relying on getting a general sense of a book or lecture from class discussion without putting in the time to read and consider the material we are covering will not serve you well in this course or any other.

Class Participation:
Regularly attending classes, arriving prepared, participating respectfully in discussions and making an effort to intellectually engage with the material, instructor and your fellow students will enhance your learning process and contribute to a positive classroom environment. Students are expected to be active participants in the formulation of knowledge in this course, rather than passive consumers. These steps will also help develop your ability to articulate your ideas and shape your arguments, which will serve you well across the various facets of your life.

Take notes. Do not rely on merely viewing the lecture or saving copies of course materials and nothing more. Memory is faulty, and attempting to recall the details of a class discussion held weeks ago without notes to refer to is a losing proposition.

Technology and the Classroom:
As this is an online course, both classes and office hours will be held via Zoom. You are strongly encouraged to attend classes during their assigned dates and times, barring unavoidable issues. Additionally, students are encouraged to participate in live classes verbally, or through Zoom's chat feature. Just as during an in-person class, students are expected to restrict the use of electronic and mobile devices to course-related functions during lectures.

While you are welcome to participate verbally during our live classes, in order to minimize disruptions, please make sure your microphone is muted when you are not actively contributing. Although we are not all in the same room, the same expectations that students will be as focused and engaged as in a more traditional classroom hold true.

The instructor reserves the right to eject anyone causing any kind of disruption from the classroom.

Plagiarism:
Using any source whatsoever without clearly documenting it is a serious academic offense. Consequences include failure on the assignment, failure in the course and possible suspension or expulsion from the university. Please refer to the following information and make sure you are familiar with the statement below on plagiarism.

PLAGIARISM
Plagiarism is an extremely serious offence. Please read the following information carefully. The penalty routinely recommended by the English Department for documented plagiarism is failure of the course in which the offence occurred; academic probation is also routinely applied at the Faculty level. Suspension or expulsion can result from severe or repeated plagiarism.
The University Calendar states:

1. Plagiarism - Essentially plagiarism involves submitting or presenting work in a course as if it were the student's own work done expressly for that particular course when, in fact, it is not. Most commonly plagiarism exists when:
   a) the work submitted or presented was done, in whole or in part, by an individual other than the one submitting or presenting the work (this includes having another impersonate the student or otherwise substituting the work of another for one's own in an examination or test),
   b) parts of the work are taken from another source without reference to the original author,
   c) the whole work (e.g., an essay) is copied from another source, and/or,
   d) a student submits or presents work in one course which has also been submitted in another course (although it may be completely original with that student) without the knowledge of or prior agreement of the instructor involved.

While it is recognized that scholarly work often involves reference to the ideas, data and conclusions of other scholars, intellectual honesty requires that such references be explicitly and clearly noted.

Plagiarism occurs when direct quotations are taken from a source without specific acknowledgement, or when original ideas or data from the source are not acknowledged. Citing your sources in a bibliography is not enough, because a bibliography does not establish which parts of a student’s work are taken from other sources. MLA (Modern Language Association) documentation or other recognized forms of citation must be used for this purpose. Advice on adequate documentation can be found at the following web sites:

http://owl.english.purdue.edu/owl/resource/747/01/

Students who are absent from class assessments (tests, participation activities, or other assignments) should inform their instructors as soon as possible. If the reason provided for the absence is acceptable, instructors may decide that any arrangements made can take forms other than make-up tests or assignments. For example, the weight of a missed grade may be added to another assignment or test. For information on possible forms of documentation, including statutory declarations, please see https://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/m-1.html.

DEPARTMENT OF ENGLISH STATEMENT ON PRINCIPLES OF CONDUCT

According to the University Calendar; https://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/k-2.html “The University of Calgary community has undertaken to be guided by the following statements of purpose and values: to promote free inquiry and debate, to act as a community of scholars, …, to respect, appreciate, and encourage diversity, [and] to display care and concern for community”. The Department of English, like the university as a whole, is committed to a “positive and productive learning and working environment.” This environment is characterized by appreciation and encouragement of diversity and respect for the dignity of all persons: students, support staff, and faculty. The department will not tolerate unacceptable behaviour, such as threatening gestures, threatening or abusive verbal or written communication (including e-mails), or any conduct that “seriously disrupts the lawful education and related activities of students and/or university staff”. Any cases of such misconduct should be reported immediately to the department Head, who, depending on the nature and severity of the incident, may then take further appropriate action.
