Course description:
This section of “Literature and Society” will explore representations of gender, sexuality, race/ethnicity, and social class in selected literary works. We will look at the ways in which writers incorporate these identity categories into the fabric of the text’s structural, characterological, and thematic elements. We will also examine how these representations provide insights into and commentaries on the social, cultural, and historical contexts of the works. There is no prerequisite for this course.

Texts and readings:
* A Doll’s House, Henrik Ibsen

Selected Readings on D2L: The readings include a selection of short stories and poems by such authors as Kate Chopin, Alice Munro, Katherine Mansfield, Liliana Hecker, Thomas King, and Li-Young Lee.

Assignments and Evaluation:
Analytical/Close Reading Essay (20%), February 11
Analytical/Close Reading + Research Essay (20%), March 26
Multiple Choice Quiz (20%), March 19
Group Presentation (20%), April 7
Registrar-Scheduled Final Exam (20%). (The exam will be take home/online)

Descriptions of Assignments:

Analytical/Close Reading Essay (February 11)
For this paper, you will be required to provide a close, detailed, and well-argued reading of some aspect of one of the course works discussed in class. You will be asked to connect your analysis to gender, sexuality, race/ethnicity, and/or social class. I will provide you, in advance, with a selection of topics for this assignment. The required length for this paper is 1200 words or approximately 4 double-spaced pages. The paper must have a title, be double-spaced and stapled (no folders please). You will be expected to use the latest MLA format (8th edition) for in-text quotations, and you will be required to include a Works Cited page in MLA format. You will be assessed on your ability to read the text that you select closely and perceptively, to organize your ideas around a central argument, and to provide sufficient textual support for your analysis. Your paper will also be assessed for grammar, sentence structure, spelling, word choice, paragraphing, and overall organization. You are not allowed to consult secondary sources for this assignment.

Analytical/Close Reading + Research Essay (March 26)
This assignment asks you, again, to provide a close, detailed, and persuasive analysis of some aspect of one of the course works already discussed in class and to connect your discussion to gender, sexuality, race/ethnicity, and/or social class. I will provide you with a selection of essay topics. You must choose a different text than the one which you chose for your first essay. The required length is 1300-1350 words or approximately 4 ½ -5 double-spaced pages. The paper must have a title, be double-spaced, and stapled. You will be required to use MLA formatting (8th edition) for in-text quotations from your selected work as well as for quotations from the critic’s work. You will also need a Works Cited page. In addition to providing a close reading and analysis, you will be asked to incorporate some aspect of one literary critic's analysis of the same text, relevant to your argument, into your discussion. There are a number of ways to engage with a critic, but for this class, consider including a very brief summation of the critic’s argument and show how it supports and/or differs from your own reading of the text. Remember to refer to the critic sparingly; you are the primary reader. The critical work must be from a scholarly source, such as a peer-reviewed academic journal, an article in a collection of essays, or a chapter from a book. You will be assessed for the clarity and strength of your argument, grammar, sentence structure, spelling, paragraphing, word choice, and overall organization.

Group Presentation (April 7)
For this project, you will be expected to choose one text that we have discussed in class from the course readings and focus on a minor detail such as an image or image pattern, a line or two from the text, or a seemingly incidental scene, character, or event, which you will connect to gender, race/ethnicity, sexuality, or social class. Students’ choice of the textual detail must be approved by me, and each group must consult with me when you are preparing your presentation, well in advance of April 7th. If you choose to discuss the same text on which you have written one of your papers, you must choose a detail and formulate an argument that you have not addressed previously. You must have a clear, specific, focused argument based on a close analysis of the text. You are required to submit a three-page (or equivalent) overview of your central argument and supporting evidence. Your analysis does not have to be a formal essay; you may include powerpoint slides in point form, provided that they are sufficiently detailed, equivalent to three double-spaced pages. There will likely be 3 students per group. This is not a research project, so DO NOT consult secondary sources. Students in each group will be assigned a common grade, except in circumstances when group members do not contribute equally to the planning and write-up of the presentation.

Multiple Choice Quiz (March 19)
This quiz will consist of 20 multiple choice questions based on the readings covered in class up to that point.

Final Exam (April 22)---take home/online
The final exam will consist of one essay, worth 60% of the overall exam grade; the remaining 40% will consist of short answer questions.
Students must be available for examinations up to the last day of the examination period April 18-29, 2020. https://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/academic-schedule.html

All Assignments must be completed in order to qualify for a passing grade

Assignments submitted after the deadline will be penalized with the loss of a third of a grade (an A- to B+) for each business day [not class] that the assignment is overdue. No assignments will be accepted one week past the assignment deadline without the prior consent of the instructor.

Students will be asked to submit assignments and exams in the D2L course site dropbox.

Internet and Electronic Communication Device Information and Guidelines; Classroom Etiquette
Students will be expected to turn off their cellphones in the classroom! Laptops are allowed in class as long as they are being used to take notes, to read the course materials on D2L, or to assist in the planning of class presentations. Students who use their laptops for other purposes, especially if such activities distract other students or the instructor, will be asked to remove them from the classroom.

Emailing the Instructor: Guidelines
Please exercise discretion, judgment, and civility if you email me. That includes appropriate salutations (for example, Hi Katherine or Hello Professor or Dr. Zelinsky). Although I expect and encourage you to ask general questions that you may have in class, you might also need to email me occasionally. I will do my best to respond to emails within 48 hours. I will not respond, however, after 6:00 pm or on weekends.

Grading system:
The following grading system will be used in this course. I will assign both a letter and a percentage grade for each assignment. There is no D- grade.

Please note that, according to the University Calendar (F.1) [https://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/f-1.html], instructors may use their discretion when rounding upwards or downwards when the average of term work and exams is between two letter grades. Although the A+ is solely an honorific that entails no additional points in the four-point system, the course instructor will employ this mark to distinguish superlative work that exceeds expectations in style, correctness, intellectual depth and breadth, sophistication, and originality.

PLAGIARISM
Plagiarism is an extremely serious offence. Please read the following information carefully. The penalty routinely recommended by the English Department for documented plagiarism is failure of the course in which the offence occurred; academic probation is also routinely applied at the Faculty level. Suspension or expulsion can result from severe or repeated plagiarism.

The University Calendar states:

1. Plagiarism - Essentially plagiarism involves submitting or presenting work in a course as if it were the student's own work done expressly for that particular course when, in fact, it is not. Most commonly plagiarism exists when:
   a) the work submitted or presented was done, in whole or in part, by an individual other than the one submitting or presenting the work (this includes having another impersonate the student or otherwise substituting the work of another for one's own in an examination or test),
   b) parts of the work are taken from another source without reference to the original author,
   c) the whole work (e.g., an essay) is copied from another source, and/or,
   d) a student submits or presents work in one course which has also been submitted in another course (although it may be completely original with that student) without the knowledge of or prior agreement of the instructor involved.

While it is recognized that scholarly work often involves reference to the ideas, data and conclusions of other scholars, intellectual honesty requires that such references be explicitly and clearly noted.

Plagiarism occurs when direct quotations are taken from a source without specific acknowledgement, or when original ideas or data from the source are not acknowledged. Citing your sources in a bibliography is not enough, because a bibliography does not establish which parts of a student’s work are taken from other sources. MLA (Modern Language Association) documentation or other recognized forms of citation must be used for this purpose. Advice on adequate documentation can be found at the following web sites:
http://owl.english.purdue.edu/owl/resource/747/01/

Students who are absent from class assessments (tests, participation activities, or other assignments) should inform their instructors as soon as possible. Instructors may request that evidence in the form of documentation be provided. If the reason provided for the absence is acceptable, instructors may decide that any arrangements made can take forms other than make-up tests or assignments. For example, the weight of a missed grade may be added to another assignment or test. For information on possible forms of documentation, including statutory declarations, please see https://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/m-1.html.
DEPARTMENT OF ENGLISH STATEMENT ON PRINCIPLES OF CONDUCT

According to the University Calendar; https://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/k-2.html
“The University of Calgary community has undertaken to be guided by the following statements of purpose and values: to promote free inquiry and debate, to act as a community of scholars, …. to respect, appreciate, and encourage diversity, [and] to display care and concern for community”. The Department of English, like the university as a whole, is committed to a “positive and productive learning and working environment.” This environment is characterized by appreciation and encouragement of diversity and respect for the dignity of all persons: students, support staff, and faculty. The department will not tolerate unacceptable behaviour, such as threatening gestures, threatening or abusive verbal or written communication (including e-mails), or any conduct that “seriously disrupts the lawful education and related activities of students and/or university staff”. Any cases of such misconduct should be reported immediately to the department Head, who, depending on the nature and severity of the incident, may then take further appropriate action.
