Email Policy

I am happy to respond to short specific questions via email. However, the best way to reach me is to call or visit me in person during my office hours. You can expect a response to your email within 5 business days. Please note that emails should be used primarily to set up appointments. Please note that if I receive a long email, I will reply with a request to set up an appointment.

Electronic submission of assignments via D2L is required with all assignments.

Use and Abuse of Electronic Devices in Class:

Laptops are permitted for class use, but please refrain from engaging with social media or other non-class related activities during class time.

Course Description:

This course will introduce you to the rudiments of craft for poetry, drama, and fiction. The course objective is to provide an opportunity to explore the basics of three genres and to develop an appreciation of the techniques and social practice of creative writing. The lecture will introduce students to the elements of craft and to introduce some work by exciting modern and contemporary writers. The Thursday seminars focus on the generation, analysis, and discussion of student writing.

Although this course does not count towards a Creative Writing “Concentration” designation on a student’s transcript, the class ideally will result in a much stronger portfolio for use in the student’s application to intermediate and advanced creative writing classes.

By the end of this course students will have:

- practiced writing craft in at least two of the three Creative Writing genres;
- begun to develop their own Creative Writing practice;
- developed a concrete understanding of how image, metaphor, dialogue and narrative may work in these three genres;
- begun to develop critical tools with which to analyze Creative Writing;
- been introduced to a number of significant Creative Writers through the course texts.

Students do not need to have written anything prior to taking this course. The course aims to encourage and support everyone from the casual journal writer who may never have discussed writing in a public way, to the budding poet or emerging novelist.

Assignments and Evaluations:

Weekly Participation 20%
Weekly Notebook 20%
Editing Assignment 10%
Portfolio One (Ten Minute Play OR Five Poems) 25%
Portfolio Two (Short Fiction) 25%

*NB There is NO FINAL EXAM in this class.

You do not have to hand in all of the assignments to receive a passing grade in this course.

Weekly Participation

Writing, like any of the creative arts, requires discipline and practice. Just like pianists, who spend hours on the piano bench accumulating muscle memory and developing their ear, writers who are serious about learning and deepening their craft spend hours at their desks, pounding away at the keys. But writing is also a social practice and writers are called upon to take interest in the work of their peers as well as established writers. In 265, there are two types of instruction: lecture and seminar. In lecture, I will explain the elements of craft and will introduce you to work by some of the major contemporary voices creating theatre, poetry, and fiction today. In your seminars, you will have the opportunity to get hands on experience led by talented up and coming voices in CanLit. Attendance is mandatory in both lecture and seminar. But the participation grade goes beyond mere attendance. You are expected to engage fully and respectfully in all aspects of the course. Your participation mark takes into account both the quality and quantity of your participation in lecture and seminar.

Weekly Notebook

The main difference between writers and everyone else is that writers write. A lot. Writers also observe the world around them and read voraciously. The Writer's Notebook is an art in itself. For the purposes of this assignment, you should expect to fill two pages every week with some or all of the following elements: specific scenes and details that you observe in daily life (be as exact as possible in your description of conflicts, actions, fabrics, dialogue etc. that you observe as you walk around in the world); notes on craft—this can be observations about sentence structure, technique, effect, etc. that you notice in texts from this or other classes or from books that you read for pleasure, or it can be practice runs of stanzas where you try several different central metaphors and then explain your thinking about the different effects and about your ultimate choice, or it can mean that you copy out a short excerpt from an article on craft by another writer and then practice it and make it your own; character sketches (again these should be based on observations from life rather than from your imagination and should include overheard dialogue whenever possible); notes and observations about visiting writers—during the course we will have several visiting writers and you are encouraged to record your thoughts and observations in your notebook; other thoughts and ideas relevant to the craft of writing—you may even attend events off-campus and want to write about them in the context of matters of craft. This will provide you with raw magma that will be very useful when you come to write your poems, scenes, and stories and transform this raw magma into solid structures in language. You may be called on to share some of your notebook in lecture and seminar. Twice during the term on a date determined by your TA, you will be required to hand in your Notebook for assessment. It is important, then, that this Writer's Notebook not be confused with the genre of diary. Please do not include confidential or overly personal details about yourself or others. This is meant to be focused on craft and on translating the world into language. All writing must be submitted online using D2L dropbox and in a PDF file.

Editing Assignment (10%):

Components:

250 Word Write-Up (5%)

Revised Excerpt (5%)

Once in the term at a date determined by your TA, you will submit a short (1-2 page excerpt) of a piece that you are working on for your portfolio. Your TA will return this to you the following week and you will have one week to rewrite your piece and explain your editorial choices in a 250 word write-up. All writing must be submitted online using D2L dropbox and in a PDF file.

Portfolio 1 (10 Minute Play OR Poetry) (25%) DUE TUESDAY MARCH 7

You will have a choice of either handing in a short play meant to be staged in 10 minutes OR a portfolio of 5 your five best poems written during the course in any genre (spoken word, sound poetry, visual poetry, lyric, formalist, or a combination).

Option 1: Ten Minute Play:

A 10 minute play is a complete story arc that takes 10 minutes on stage. It should be a maximum of ten pages of script (including stage directions) and a minimum of eight script pages but will also include a page describing the Dramatic Personae.

Option 2: Poetry Portfolio:

A poetry portfolio consists of five poems in any genre that have been edited and rewritten so as to find their best expression.

In either case, this assignment is meant to represent new work insofar as you will have written it from concept to submitted draft during the course of this semester. However, you should not submit first drafts. This assignment must consist of your original work and represent the best work that you have done this semester (no writing from other classes or from workshops that you've taken off campus etc.).

Both portfolios will be graded by your professor. All writing must be submitted online using D2L dropbox and in a PDF file.

Portfolio 2 Short Fiction (25%) DUE TUESDAY APRIL 11

This portfolio should be between 2500 and 3000 words and may consist of one short story or several pieces of micro fiction (complete stories of up to 750 words each). Depending how long your microfiction pieces are, you may be required to submit quite a few to make up the word count.

As with the first portfolio, this portfolio will be marked by your professor and will consist of original, polished work written during the course of this semester. All writing must be submitted online using D2L dropbox and in a PDF file.

Late Assignment Policy:

Assignments submitted after the deadline will be penalized with the loss of a third of a grade (an A- to B+) for each business day [not class] that the assignment is overdue. No assignments will be accepted one week past the assignment deadline without the prior consent of the instructor. Your Graduate Teaching Assistants are not able to offer extensions for any assignment; you must contact Professor Maguire directly. There are no make-up assignments.

Please make every effort to take assignments directly to the instructor. If it is not possible to do so, take your assignment to SS 1152 and put it in the dropbox. Your assignment will be date-stamped and placed in the instructor's mailbox. It is your responsibility to keep a copy of all assignments in case of loss by any cause. Assignments cannot be returned by staff in the Department office.

Grading System

PLAGIARISM

Plagiarism is an extremely serious offence. Please read the following information carefully. The penalty routinely recommended by the English Department for documented plagiarism is failure of the course in which the offence occurred; academic probation is also routinely applied at the Faculty level. Suspension or expulsion can result from severe or repeated plagiarism.

The University Calendar states:

1. Plagiarism - Essentially plagiarism involves submitting or presenting work in a course as if it were the student's own work done expressly for that particular course when, in fact, it is not. Most commonly plagiarism exists when:

- (a) the work submitted or presented was done, in whole or in part, by an individual other than the one submitting or presenting the work (this includes having another impersonate the student or otherwise substituting the work of another for one's own in an examination or test),
- (b) parts of the work are taken from another source without reference to the original author,
- (c) the whole work (e.g., an essay) is copied from another source, and/or,
- (d) a student submits or presents work in one course which has also been submitted in another course (although it may be completely original with that student) without the knowledge of or prior agreement of the instructor involved.

While it is recognized that scholarly work often involves reference to the ideas, data and conclusions of other scholars, intellectual honesty requires that such references be explicitly and clearly noted.

Plagiarism occurs when direct quotations are taken from a source without specific acknowledgement, or when original ideas or data from the source are not acknowledged. Citing your sources in a bibliography is not enough, because a bibliography does not establish which parts of a student's work are taken from other sources. MLA (Modern Language Association) documentation or other recognized forms of citation must be used for this purpose. Advice on adequate documentation can be found at the following web sites:

DEPARTMENT OF ENGLISH STATEMENT ON PRINCIPLES OF CONDUCT

According to the University Calendar, (<http://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/j.html>)

“The University of Calgary community has undertaken to be guided by the following statements of purpose and values: to promote free inquiry and debate, to act as a community of scholars, ..., to respect, appreciate, and encourage diversity, [and] to display care and concern for community”. The Department of English, like the university as a whole, is committed to a “positive and productive learning and working environment.” This environment is characterized by appreciation and encouragement of diversity and respect for the dignity of all persons: students, support staff, and faculty. The department will not tolerate unacceptable behaviour, such as threatening gestures, threatening or abusive verbal or written communication (including e-mails), or any conduct that “seriously disrupts the lawful education and related activities of students and/or university staff”. Any cases of such misconduct should be reported immediately to the department Head, who, depending on the nature and severity of the incident, may then take further appropriate action.
