Calendar and course description:

An overview of writing by indigenous peoples in Canada and/or North America. This course may not be repeated for credit. (Formerly English 385).

This course will form for many an introduction to Indigenous storytelling in the Canadian context. We will be focussing on notions of identity and history, and spending a good deal of time on history (residential schools, reconciliation, gender, sexualities, indigenous perspectives on knowledge, teaching, learning and “methodology”). In addition, as the University of Calgary has recently adopted a parallel Indigenous and Western Indigenous Strategy, we will be looking at this document and its implications for study at our institution, and in relation to the course “texts”. This course will not be lecture-based and is therefore necessarily collaborative and student-centred. It also has a strong online component, requires students to participate actively with the course material, with each other and with the instructor. Some of the material on the course (both reading and viewing), is tough for some people to get through, as is the case with much historical or contemporary material that deals with violence and with colonialism. Please let me know if this is a concern for you: there is a good deal of choice in the course material already; however, it is important that we engage in it together and reflect on what it is we choose to read, watch and research and what not to. The journal assignment listed below is the main assignment for such reflections, although we will also engage on these in class.

Texts and course material:

You will find much course material on the course website. You may also buy books at the bookstore or order them online. If you prefer, you can read most of these books in digital form either through the library or through reading apps. There are also several film and website links that will be posted on D2L through the term, many available at the library and/or online. Some of these we will watch in class. You are not required to read all of these texts: we will discuss what options you have in class. Confer with me frequently if you are not certain.

Jason Eaglespeaker, UNEducation, Vol.1: A Residential School Graphic Novel (uncut version).

Patti Laboucane-Benson, The Outside Circle (graphic novel)

Leanne Betasamosake Simpson, Islands of Decolonial Love or Accident of Being Lost (and music)

Katherena Vermette, The Break

University of Calgary, ii'taa'poh'to'p, <https://www.ucalgary.ca/indigenous-strategy/>

Joshua Whitehead, Full-Metal Indigiqueer

Critical texts:

Margaret Kovach, Indigenous Methodologies Characteristics Conversations & Contexts

Deanna Reder et al, Learn, Teach, Challenge: Approaches To Indigenous Literatures

Chelsea Vowel, Indigenous Writes or Vowel's blog, apihtawikosisan.com

Assignments and Evaluation:

Class participation (required)	20%
Portfolio: individual projects and reflective journal (required)	40%
Research log (required)	20%
Group presentation	20%
End-of-term discussion with instructor (suggested)	ungraded
Total	100%

- Guidelines for assignments will be posted under “What To Do” on D2L. Review them regularly, as we add to them often.
- Participation: This class is based on collaboration, inquiry, and self-directed learning which is why we will all take class participation very (very) seriously. Participation means in part that you will: commit to this class (both online and face-to-face). Attendance is critical. There is a good deal of material on D2L, and an online discussion group, alongside classes that involve discussion, various tasks and exercises and a lot of interaction with instructors. Participation is about respectful listening as much as it is about talking. I expect you to engage in class and group discussions both in class and online, but also to keep your counsel if you are comfortable speaking and to take some risks if you are not; to help out others in need, to keep a detailed record of group discussions and processes (perhaps the most difficult part of group work); to regularly interact with instructors, group and class members, and demonstrate a reasonable commitment to the course, your colleagues and the work throughout the term. Although there are justifiable reasons not to attend class, and you do not have to explain these, I expect you to inform both us and group members ahead of time, preferably by e-mail, if you are not going to be in class. This aspect of respect for others in the class community is critical for the assessment of participation. Finally, in this class you will always be expected to ask questions, addressing the course goal of curiosity, finding out information and addressing knowledge gaps, even when you would rather not. Please come and talk to me very early in the term (before the drop date) if you have any questions or concerns about participation, the course teaching style, course content, assignments, or the technology.
- Review guidelines for portfolios and research logs. Your portfolio will contain a number suggested tasks and quizzes, some of which you will do in class. There is a good deal of choice built into the portfolio: the main idea is to build it up throughout the term so that you have a good sample of different kinds of work. The portfolio also includes your final reflective journal which will comprise (very roughly) half of your portfolio work.
- You must complete all assignment components to receive a passing grade on the course.
- Unless you arrange otherwise, you will be submitting assignments electronically through the assignment dropbox in D2L. I do not accept assignments by e-mail.. Keep copies, and back your work up. There is an after-hours dropbox for approved non-electronic assignments outside SS1152, the main English department office. Ensure that your name is on all electronic and paper documents please!

Grading system:

Although final grades are converted to the 4-point system by the university, these are the grade ranges and specific numeric values assigned to letter grades in my grading program. Any individual assignment grade is converted to the mid-point value of the grade range. Your final grade will fall within the grade ranges listed on the chart. If your final grade falls on the borderline between two grade ranges, I round up (e.g. 84.7 would be an A).

90 – 100	A+	4.0
85 – 89 %	A	4.0
80 – 84 %	A–	3.7
77 – 79 %	B+	3.3
74 – 76 %	B	3.0
70 – 73 %	B–	2.7
67 – 69 %	C+	2.3
64 – 66 %	C	2.0
60 – 63 %	C–	1.7
55 – 59 %	D+	1.3
50 – 54 %	D	1.0
0 – 49 %	F	0

Other notes:

- Electronic devices in the classroom are welcomed for purposes of research, writing, and note-taking for the course. Indeed, I will call on you frequently if you have a laptop or smartphone handy. I reserve the right to ask you to put phones and computers away if they are getting distracting (and will during certain class exercises ask you to do so unless you have a documented reason for using them). You cannot engage in the online component of this course with a phone only.
- Communicating by e-mail and office hours: Please do not expect instant responses to your e-mails (give me at least 24 hours). You will not normally get responses to e-mail on weekends. Please identify yourself by name in your e-mails, always provide a subject, and add the course number to the subject line or e-mail using D2L. It is perfectly appropriate to send a reminder e-mail within a day or two if you have not received a response. I would like to meet with you all in person, so arrange a time that works for you if office hours do not. I am happy to meet with people in groups, and encourage it.
- Please ensure that you review assignment guidelines extension policies and deadlines. While I do not have late policies per se, it is to your advantage to get your assignments in for feedback. Please observe due dates for tasks. Review the material below in the event that you are not able to meet all due dates by the end of classes.

Plagiarism:

Using any source whatsoever without clearly documenting it is a serious academic offense. Consequences include failure on the assignment, failure in the course and possible suspension or expulsion from the university. Please refer to the following information and make sure you are familiar with the statement below on plagiarism.

"At the University of Calgary, feedback provided by students through the Universal Student Ratings of Instruction (USRI) survey provides valuable information to help with evaluating instruction, enhancing learning and teaching, and selecting courses (www.ucalgary.ca/usri). Your responses make a difference - please participate in USRI Surveys."

PLAGIARISM

Plagiarism is an extremely serious offence. Please read the following information carefully. The penalty routinely recommended by the English Department for documented plagiarism is failure of the course in which the offence occurred; academic probation is also routinely applied at the Faculty level. Suspension or expulsion can result from severe or repeated plagiarism.

The University Calendar states:

1. Plagiarism - Essentially plagiarism involves submitting or presenting work in a course as if it were the student's own work done expressly for that particular course when, in fact, it is not. Most commonly plagiarism exists when:

- (a) the work submitted or presented was done, in whole or in part, by an individual other than the one submitting or presenting the work (this includes having another impersonate the student or otherwise substituting the work of another for one's own in an examination or test),
- (b) parts of the work are taken from another source without reference to the original author,
- (c) the whole work (e.g., an essay) is copied from another source, and/or,
- (d) a student submits or presents work in one course which has also been submitted in another course (although it may be completely original with that student) without the knowledge of or prior agreement of the instructor involved.

While it is recognized that scholarly work often involves reference to the ideas, data and conclusions of other scholars, intellectual honesty requires that such references be explicitly and clearly noted.

Plagiarism occurs when direct quotations are taken from a source without specific acknowledgement, or when original ideas or data from the source are not acknowledged. Citing your sources in a bibliography is not enough, because a bibliography does not establish which parts of a student's work are taken from other sources. MLA (Modern Language Association) documentation or other recognized forms of citation must be used for this purpose. Advice on adequate documentation can be found at the following web sites:

DEPARTMENT OF ENGLISH STATEMENT ON PRINCIPLES OF CONDUCT

According to the University Calendar, <http://www.ucalgary.ca/pubs/calendar/current/j.html>

“The University of Calgary community has undertaken to be guided by the following statements of purpose and values: to promote free inquiry and debate, to act as a community of scholars, ..., to respect, appreciate, and encourage diversity, [and] to display care and concern for community”. The Department of English, like the university as a whole, is committed to a “positive and productive learning and working environment.” This environment is characterized by appreciation and encouragement of diversity and respect for the dignity of all persons: students, support staff, and faculty. The department will not tolerate unacceptable behaviour, such as threatening gestures, threatening or abusive verbal or written communication (including e-mails), or any conduct that “seriously disrupts the lawful education and related activities of students and/or university staff”. Any cases of such misconduct should be reported immediately to the department Head, who, depending on the nature and severity of the incident, may then take further appropriate action.
